What is Access Jawn?

Access Jawn is a Philadelphia-based peer-group powered by Art-Reach to foster a community of cultural professionals who are dedicated to increasing accessibility in the arts. We welcome individuals who are new to the field, an expert, and everyone in between for helpful conversation, knowledge sharing, and FUN! We'll convene online using Slack and in-person every third Tuesday of the month!

What is Slack?

Slack is a collaboration hub where you and your team can work together to get things done. Slack is organized into #channels, which are basically topics. Members can create, join or leave #channels whenever they'd like. We'll use the #channels to organize conversations surrounding accessibility – don't see a topic for you – feel free to create one!

Slack can be used via web browser (accessjawn.slack.com), a desktop app, or mobile app (look in your phone's app store!). Feel free to customize your notifications so you hear from Access Jawn as frequently or infrequently as you'd like.

Our intention is to create a fun, informative, & safe space where we can share ideas, resources, advice, and stories with each other to build a collaborative access community. I hope that Access Jawn inspires us all to make our cultural sector inclusive and accessible and that we can all work together to make Philadelphia the most accessible city for the arts in the country!
